ONE INSTANTLY KILLED, ANOTH-ER DIES OF HIS WOUNDS AND A THIRD BADLY HURT.

St Paul, Oct. 3 .- A special to the Globe from Buffalo, Minn., says:

In a pitched battle between sheriff's posse and a gang of tramps near Fair Haven, twenty miles from here, just off the Soo road, Friday, the leader of the tramps was killed, one of his band mortally wounded and another man badly shot.

Details of the trouble have not yet been told. It is known, however, that neither Sheriff Young, of this place, nor his deputy was hurt, as was at first reported.

Friday morning the sheriff with one deputy started in pursuit of a gang of troops had taken the field. Instead of thieving tramps that has been marauding in this neighborhood. It was known that the men had gone in the direction of Fair Haven. The sheriff located the men in a box car and not knowing they were armed, jumped into the car and demanded their surrender. The tramps covered the sheriff and his leputy with guns, made them throw up their hands and disarmed them.

MANY WITNESSES HEARD.

Large Amount of Testimony Taken In Tillman Case.

Lexington, S. C., Oct. 3 .- A vast amount of testimony was taken Friday in the trial of J. H. Tillman, nearly twenty witnesses giving evidence. In addition to this the reading of the editorials in the State was concluded. The prosecution has progressed rapidly toward the concluion of its side of the case.

The first witnesses called were among those who were in the office of the State when Conzales was carried there after the shooting. L. G. Wood, Jr., testified that he found no weapons in the overcoat that Gonzales was wearing when he was shot,

Dr. W. J. Murray sald that Gonzales

He Moderate.

A great writer tells us that "moderation is the inseparable companion of wisdom," and another writer says, "Moderation is the silken string running through the pearl chain of all virtues." When we try to do too many things at once we are unfitting ourselves for that practical usefulness which holds no overcrowded state of affairs. She is a wise woman who regulates her life to take upon berself no more duties than she can attend to properly and successfully. She not only saves her health and her strength, lut her work is satisfactory and her pleasures, though few, are thoroughly enjoyed. Indeed, there is no greater blessing than a well regulated life.

Curious Case of Mind Reading.

A very curious case is related in the Annales Psychiques. A child of seven years, in good health, lively and robust, cited the whole multiplication table at the first trial, solved instantly complicated problems and made not a single mistake in his first spelling lesson. It was soon realized that the child did not calculate by himself and did not spell of his own accord. He was reading his mother's mind, and he did this even S. COLLAR AND CRAVAT.

Ways In Which They Affect the Appearance of the Wearer.

Men who do not want to look any fatter in the face than they can help have an easy means of accomplishing their purpose. Not all of them are aware of the effect that may be created by the form of a collar or cravat.

"The stout man who wants to look as thin as he can," said a haberdasher's slerk, "ought to wear a tie of the kind known as a four-in-hand. Preferably It should be dark in color and drawn tight. That carries down the line of the face and lengthens it to a degree that tends to make the face look thin-

"Another aid to making a man look thin is in the height of his collars. Stout men who want to look thin should wear high collars and closed ones. Any collar that opens in front makes one look stouter under nearly every circumstance. Such collars are becoming to the thin men.

"The fat man should avoid the kind of tie that has a horizontal effect. This will add pounds to his appearance-in his face, at least.

"On the contrary, this cross effect will make the thin man look stout. The broad scarfs have little effect on a man's looks one way or the other. When he wears them it is the collar that makes the difference.

"He should therefore see that he wears a high one that does not open if he wants to look as thin as possible, whereas if he wants to seem stouter an open collar will produce that effect for

English Smugglers.

Smuggling was carried on with great boldness in England a century ago. THE FIERY DRAGON.

Ancient and Mediæval Descriptions of the Monster.

Dragons were important animals in ancient and mediæval natural history. Until comparatively recent time no scientist ever thought of questioning the existence of this most formidable of beasts. The annals of Winchester for 1177 gravely state that "in this year dragons were seen of many in England." Gesner, professor of natural history at Zurich, gives a detailed description of the dragon, while Aldrovandus, in his "History of Serpents and Dragons," published in 1640, devotes fifty pages to the monster. A good specimen of a dragon would seem to have been a beast about the size of a sheep, incased in a coat of scales which shone like silver. Its back was serrated like a saw. It possessed a long tail, a pair of batlike wings, four heavily clawed feet and a wolvine head, the jaws of which were armed with very formidable teeth. The tongue was barbed with fire, and fury issued from the monster's mouth, and the head bore a crest. Dragons were the most wicked and vindictive of creatures. They seem always to have been in a towering rage and spent the greater portion of their time in rushing up and down the earth destroying everything that came in their path. The origin of mediæval naturalists. Some maintained that these animals were generated by the heat of India; others were of opinion that the volcanoes of Ethiopia used to belch forth the monsters. One scientist, John Leo by name, declared the dragon to be a hybrid, a cross between an eagle and a wolf.

Temperature and Atmosphere. That a body can acquire during the night a different temperature from that of the surrounding atmosphere has been demonstrated by an English physicist. If a thermometer is taken from the window, wrapped in cotton and placed on the ground its mercury will descend seven or eight degrees. Vegetables similarly situated, and being bad conductors, may freeze at a time when the thermometer does not mark the freezing point-proof that It is not necessary for residents of the | the cold experienced by the plant may be entirely different from the temperature of the surrounding air. This low temperature of plants, however, only occurs when the night is clear, since at this time the plant sheds its heat throughout space and becomes chilled, whereas if the night is cloudy the phenomenon does not occur. This gives rise to the popular superstition that plants and buds are frozen by

> Curious Case of Mind Reading. A very curious case is related in the Annales Psychiques. A child of seven years, in good health, lively and robust, belonging to equally healthy parents, showed a strange facility in learning all that his mother taught him. He recited the whole multiplication table at the first trial, solved instantly complicated problems and made not a single mistake in his first spelling lesson. It was soon realized that the child did not calculate by himself and did not spell of his own accord. He was reading his mother's mind, and he did this even when his eyes were shut and his back turned, provided only that she were near him. One day she had the idea of interposing a screen between her calculation, no more spelling. The screen was sufficient to prevent the child from reading the mother's thoughts.

Looking into the fire is very injurious to the eye, particularly a coal fire. The stimulus of light and heat united soon destroys the eyes. Looking at molten iron will soon destroy the sight. Reading in the twilight is injurious to the eyes, as they are obliged to make great exertion. Reading or sewing with a side light injures the eyes, as both eyes should be exposed to an equal force of light. Those who wish to preserve their sight should preserve their general health by correct habits of living and give their eyes just work enough, with a due degree of light.

THREE MORE INDICTMENTS.

George W. Beavers Charged With Conspiracy.

Washington, Oct. 2,-The grand jury of the supreme court of the District of Columbia Thursday brought in three more indictments in connection with the postoffice department investigation. One was a joint indictment against George W. Beavers, formerly chief of the salary and allowance division of the postoffice department, and State Senator Greene of Binghampton, N. Y. This indictment was brought under section 5440 of the revised statutes and is on the general ground that they entered into a conspiracy to defraud the government, This, it is alleged, they accomplished in the sale of time checks, from which sale they were enabled to reap a reward because of Mr. Beavers' connec tion with the department by which the checks were purchased. The former indictment against Greene and Beavers was under another section of the statutes and charges conspiracy against the United States.

The other two indictments were against Scott Towers, who has charge of one of the principal sub postoffice stations in this city. He is accused of having received a commission on to the government in contravention of sections 1781 and 1782 of the revised statutes which prohibit officers or employes of the United States from reeiving other compensation than their salaries for procuring contracts from the government or for services ren-

The present grand jury will adjourn finally next Monday and the expectation is that a number of other postoffice indictments will be returned on it or the incidents related go to show

How the Sculptor Cellini Was Cured. to our view; "seems" refers to an infercast his famous statue of Perseus, now in the Loggia dei Lanzi at Florence, was taken with a sudden fever. In the midst of his suffering one of his workmen rushed into his sick chamber and exclaimed: "Oh, Benvenuto! Your statue is spoiled, and there is no hope whatever of saving it!" Cellini said that when he heard this he gave a howl and leaped from his bed. Dressing hastily, he rushed to his furnace and found his metal "caked." He or dered dry oak wood and fired the furnace fiercely, working in a rain that saved his metal. He continues the story thus: "After all was over I turned to a plate of salad on a bench there and ate with a hearty appetite and drank together with the whole crew. Afterward, I retired to my bed, healthy and happy, for it was two hours before morning, and slept as sweetly as if I had never felt a touch of illness.' His overpowering idea of saving his statue not only drove the idea of illness from his mind, but also drove away the physical condition and left him well. It was a triumph of mind.

Annual Flowers.

Annual plants are those that you must sow every year. From seed to seed is only a year or less. Annual plants probably comprise half the flowering plants of the world. They quickly take advantage of the moving seasons, grow, blossom and die before they are caught by the blight of winter or by the parching dry season. They are shifty plants, now growing here, then absconding to other places. This very uncertainty and capriciousness make them worth the while. The staid perennials I want for the main and permanent effects in my garden. but I could no more do without annuals than I could do without the spices and the condiments of the table. They are flowers of a season; I like the flowers of a season.-Country Life In America.

COLLAR AND CRAVAT. Ways In Which They Affect the Appearance of the Wearer. Men who do not want to look any fatter in the face than they can help have an easy means of accomplishing their purpose. Not all of them are aware of the effect that may be created by the form of a collar or cravat. "The stout man who wants to look as thin as he can," said a haberdasher's elerk, "ought to wear a tie of the kind known as a four-in-hand. Preferably It should be dark in color and drawn tight. That carries down the line of the face and lengthens it to a degree that tends to make the face look thin-

"Another aid to making a man look thin is in the height of his collars. Stout men who want to look thin should wear high collars and closed ones. Any collar that opens in front makes one look stouter under nearly every circumstance. Such collars are becoming to the thin men.

"The fat man should avoid the kind of tie that has a horizontal effect. This will add pounds to his appearance-in his face, at least.

"On the contrary, this cross effect will make the thin man look stout. The broad scarfs have little effect on a man's looks one way or the other. When he wears them it is the collar that makes the difference.

"He should therefore see that he wears a high one that does not open if he wants to look as thin as possible, whereas if he wants to seem stouter an open collar will produce that effect for

English Smugglers.

Smuggling was carried on with great boldness in England a century ago. When Samuel Pellew was appointed collector of customs at Falmouth early last century he found corruption the chief characteristic of the service. One day he surprised a party of his own men attempting to smuggle in a cargo of wine in broad daylight. Pellew, who was a conscientious man, so worried the smugglers that they threatened his life repeatedly and posted bills offering a reward for his assassination. One smuggler, who kept a public house, erected a battery of guns to defend his illicit goods, and when a sloop of war exhibited what he considered a too inquisitive spirit actually fired on her. The vessel's guns were too low to reply with effect, but her crew landed in boats, attacked the house in the rear and leveled it to the ground.

The Difference In Two Words. the difference in significance of the two words "seems" and "appears?" We say "it seems to be true" or "it appears the sale of book typewriting machines to be true." Are those expressions identical, or if there be a difference

There is a difference, and it consists chiefly in the strength of the expression. If we read a story and say, "That story seems to be true," we mean that it has the semblance of truth and we infer that it is true. If we say, "That story appears to be true," we mean that the statements made in the actual presentation of something Benvenuto Cellini, when about to ence of our mind as to the probability of a thing being true.

First Type Cast In America.

It was a good man, Christopher Sower, who made the first punches and matrices and cast the first type in America. The anvil he made them on is still preserved. They were for a German Bible which he published.

"The price of our newly finished Bible, in plain binding, with a clasp, will be 18 shillings," he said, "but to the poor and needy we have no price. John the Baptist sent the message to was falling, stirred the channels and Christ, 'Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?' and Jesus sent back word, 'The poor have the gospel preached to them."

Sower's German Bible was printed in 1743 and was the first Bible published in America in any European

HEMSTEAD HOME BADLY SCORCHED

Beautiful New Residence Caught Fire at Early Hour and a Heavy Loss Resulted.

THE DAMAGE WILL REACH $8000

The Furniture and Decorations are Badly Damaged and Building is Saturated.

One of the most unfortunate and, what would seem a most untimely fire occurred this morning when the beautiful new home of Dr. and Mrs. Werner Hemstead, at the corner of Fourth and Kingwood streets, caught fire and before the flames could be quenched a large amount of damage

The first report of the fire was from N. M. Paine, who lives directly across the street. Mr. Paine, after getting up Ed Morton arrived in the city today about 7 o'clock, happened to look across the street and he saw smoke issuing from the north side of the big residence Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stade returned and it was found that it was coming alarm and the members of the fire de partment made a quick response

It seemed rather hard for the mem bers of the department to locate the fire and it seemed still harder to know just where to ply the hose to cause the least damage. Smoke ensued from different places in the large structure by the Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Murphy left today | time the department arrived and it for Minneapolis where they will visit for | looked for a time as though the building and all its contents was doomed to destruction. The work was concentratnoon for Superior where they will visit ed to the north side of the house and by going up on the roof and making an opening the fire fighters seemd to get at the nest of the flames and they were very soon afterward subdued. Water by this time, however, had been used in profusion and all the beautiful furnishings, walls and ceilings were soaked. Water came through the different floors as if there was no roof on the house at all. Every effort was therefore made to save most of the costly furniture and much of it was removed from the house but all more or less damaged.

> The first to discover the fire in the house was Miss Sadie Reilly, who happened to be a guest of Mrs. Hemstead over night. She awoke the family and a general alarm was given throughout the house and all the personal effects of the family were saved and no one was in the slightest way injured.

Great credit is due the members of the fire department for the good work done. They, without doubt, saved the building from total destruction and it fire to do its work for it had made quite a start when the boys ar-

HEMSTEAD HOME BADLY SCORCHED

Beautiful New Residence Caught Fire at Early Hour and a Heavy Loss Resulted.

THE DAMAGE WILL REACH $8000

The Furniture and Decorations are Badly Damaged and Building is Saturated.

One of the most unfortunate and. what would seem a most untimely fire occurred this morning when the beautiful new home of Dr. and Mrs. Werner Hemstead, at the corner of Fourth and Kingwood streets, caught fire and before the flames could be quenched a large amount of damage

The first report of the fire was from N. M. Paine, who lives directly across the street. Mr. Paine, after getting up about 7 o'clock, happened to look across the street and he saw smoke issuing from the north side of the big residence and it was found that it was coming from what is known as the doctor's "den." Mr. Paine at once turned in an alarm and the members of the fire department made a quick response.

It seemed rather hard for the members of the department to locate the fire and it seemed still harder to know just where to ply the hose to cause the least damage. Smoke ensued from different places in the large structure by the Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Murphy left today time the department arrived and it for Minneapolis where they will visit for looked for a time as though the building and all its contents was doomed to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Anderson left this destruction. The work was concentratnoon for Superior where they will visit ed to the north side of the house and by going up on the roof and making an opening the fire fighters seemd to get at the nest of the flames and they were very soon afterward subdued. Water by this time, however, had been used in profusion and all the beautiful furnishings, walls and ceilings were soaked. Water came through the different floors as if there was no roof on the house at all. Every effort was therefore made to save most of the costly furniture and much of it was removed from the house but all more or less damaged.

> The first to discover the fire in the house was Miss Sadie Reilly, who happened to be a guest of Mrs. Hemstead over night. She awoke the family and a general alarm was given throughout the house and all the personal effects of the family were saved and no one was in the slightest way injured.

> Great credit is due the members of the fire department for the good work done. They, without doubt, saved the building from total destruction and it would not have taken long either for the fire to do its work for it had made quite a start when the boys ar-

The origin of the fire is problematical, some thinking that it was the lightning that struck the house, while others ventured the opinion, after looking the house over, that it was from the wiring of the house for electric lights. At any rate the fire seemed to have started right at the point where the wires run into the house in the bath room just over the doctor's "den" and it seemed to burn up and down from this point clear through all three floors.

CURES CATARRH.

Catarrh Ever Discoved," Says

H. P. Dunn & Co.

Do not try to cure catarrh by taking drugs into the stomach; it cannot be cured in that manner. The only way in which this too common disease can be cured is through a direct application that will kill the bacilli of catarrh and prevent their growth.

Hyomei is the only known method of treatment that accomplishes this. It is the simplest, most pleasant, and the only absolute cure for catarrh that has ever been discovered.

Thousands of unsolicited testimonials have been received from the most prominent men and women in the country who have been cured by this remarkable remedy. Ministers, bankers, lawyers, even eminent physicians have given strong testimonials as to the remarkable powers of Hyomei to cure catarrh.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, consisting of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei to last several weeks. This will effect a cure in ordin- D. M. Clark & Co's.

ary cases, but for chronic and deepseated cases of catarrh, longer use may be necessary, and then extra bottle of Hy-"Hyomei the Most Wonderful Cure for omei can be obtained for 50c. It is not alone the best (it might be called the only) method of curing catarrh, but it is also the most economical.

H. P. Dunn & Co. have so much confidence in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrh that they will for a limited time, sell this medicine under their personal guarantee to refund the money if the purchasers can say that it did not help

DEAD ATFER DILIGENT SEARCH

Bodies of Mrs Borders and her of the opposite shore of Long Lake with Two Daughters are Taken Out of Lake

THE LITTLE BABE IS NOT FOUND

Searching Parties are Still Work. ing With the Hope of Finding Third Body

Brainerd and vicinity has not recovered from the terrible shock when the news of the drowning of Mrs. Vet Borders and her three daughters was made known yesterday afternoon in The Dis-PATCH and it has been years since such a terrible calamity has been credited to

The horrible details of the drowning will be recited for years to come as people pass near the "narrows" of Long lake, for that spot has been marked as a death trap of the worst kind.

THREE BODIES FOUND.

All day yesterday after the news of the drowning was made known searching parties were formed and diligent work was done to try and locate the bodies. The gentlemen at work were rewarded last night about 5 o'clock when the waters of the old lake gave up her dead, a grappling hook having caught Mrs. Border's clothing. She was the first to be pulled out and a short time afterward Mrs. Alice Hurd was found. Then came the little ten year old girl. The three seemed to have been drowned and then went to the bottom almost together, for they were but a few feet apart. The youngest babe was not found up to a late hour this afternoon although the search was not a lantern, expecting his family and therefore being ready to help them across the "narrows." According to the latest story it was morning before he and Ed Hurd, husband of the oldest daughter, who was drowned, went across the lake to the Emmons place in a row boat. The old gentleman stayed there and young Hurd started to row back. When about half way back he saw something in the water that attracted his attention and going to the spot he found the horses and wagon. He then hastened back to the Emmons place and told Mr. Borders. A searching party was then formed and the men worked all day with the results as stated above.

The crew of men worked diligently until 6 o'clock last night and then decided to do nothing further until this morning at 9 o'clock.

Clarence Brown came in from the home of the Borders this afternoon and more of the details surrounding the awful accident were learned.

According to his story on the night that Mrs. Borders and the children were supposed to get home the old gentleman spent most of the time along the bank | the search.

MISTOOK OLD LAND MARK.

It is the opinion of those who are acquainted with the "narrows" and saw the position the wagon and horses were in that Mrs. Borders in driving through the water mistook a large bunch of rushes, there being one bunch in the water that has always been used as a marker for the driver. When she turned off to go toward these rushes the whole rig went down into the water. It is very deep at this point, thirty feet it

There is a daughter of Mrs. Borders living in this city, Miss Pearl Borders, and she works at the Stratton hotel. She went out home last night after the news of the drowning was made known. There are also other relatives of the family living in the city.

WHAT THE "NARROWS" IS.

The "narrows" at Long lake is a fording place about 200 feet long. The point of a bar juts out from each side of the shore, and farmers by walking their horses through the shallow water go from point to point. It is generally used as a short cut, saving three or four miles driving. Should the lake be disturbed or stormy, the "narrows" is also affected and rendered more or less un-

Several relatives of Mrs. Vet Borders were not aware of the disaster until reading it in THE DAILY DISPATCH, and left Brainerd immediately to assist in

A Bold Bank Robbery.

Attorney C. A. Allbright reports a bank robbery, something unusual for THE DISPATCH to chronicle. The robbery occured while Mr. Allbright was at the lake. Some sneak theif entered his office and misappropriated his savings bank, which he got a few days ago. It might be stated in order to relieve those who are worrying about the matter that Mr. Allbright had less than a dollar in the bank, but just to think that any one would have the audacity to rob a bank right in broad day light in Brainerd.

SPECULATED IN WALL STREET. Wife of a New York Dentist Charged

With Grand Larceny.

New York, Oct. 3 .- Marie Layton Johnson, wife of Albert M. Johnson, a dentist of Larchmont, N. Y., was arrested last night on a warrant charging her with the grand larceny of $2,000 The total amount of her defalcations may, it is said, reach to $50,000 The complainants are offiers of the United States Playing Card company of Cincinnati

Mrs. Johnson, whose maiden name was Marie Layton, was bookkeeper in the New York office and in addition acted as private secretary to President McCutcheon. She was married to Dr. Johnson in 1901, but did not leave her position after the marriage. In April of this year, discrepancies are said to have been discovered in her accounts according to the statement given out by Inspector McClusky, and an examination is said to have revealed a shortage of $10,000 between Jan, 1 and April 15, in the accounts of the New York office.

The woman is alleged to have falsified accounts between the Cincinnati and New York offices It is said that Mrs. Johnson speculated in Wall street and lost considerable money there.

One of Them. "I am sorry to hear your unfortu-nate nephew has been closed out by the sheriff," said the friend of the famlly. "Have you any idea what his liabilities are?"

"Yes. I've an idee he's liable to call on me fur help about the fust thing he does," responded Uncle Silas.-Chicago Tribune.

Property Found on Crimianis,

"The question as to what final disposition is made of money and jewelry found in the possession of criminals was frequently asked me when I was on the force two years ago," said an ex-captain of the New York police force. "As a rule, everything found upon an arrested criminal which obviously is not his lawful property is held in trust, as it were, by the police for possible claimants. If no claimants turn up the property is returned to the criminal on being released from his term of imprisonment, provided the commissioner of police is perfectly satissied that the property actually does belong to him,

"If the commissioner has reasons to think otherwise, however, the articles. often valuable, are held indefinitely or until it is certain that they will never be claimed by their rightful owners. when the stuff is finally disposed of and the proceeds handed over to benefit one or another of the various police funds.

"There are certain things, however, which the police never return to those on whom they have been found, such as burglarizing tools, firearms, gambling devices, begging letters-anything, in fact, that might be used by criminals again in their nefarious occupations."

The Baby's Band.

There are several wrong ways of putting on a baby's band. It may be fastened too tight. If it is a hemmed or bound band it is a very easy thing to make him uncomfortable with it, no matter how loosely you pin it on. The band, when it is of flannel, should be an unhemmed strip torn from the tonholes on the other side to correspond piece. Skilled nurses sew this band on the child every morning with a few quick stitches. The nervous mother shrinks from attempting this and sticks to safety pins. But there is a wrong way as well as a right way of putting these in. The wrong way is to use large pins and then put them in up and down, so that when the poor little thing bends over, as a weak backed youngster is prone to do, the onds of the pins punch his tender anatomy. The right way is to use small pins and put them in horizontally. Then, when the baby leans over, no harm is done. When the child is older and wears a knit band, with or without shoulder straps, there is no more trouble about pinning or sewing, but at first the strip of flannel is almost universally worn by babies.

A great bell maker and a notable patriot, Revere's claim to distinction does not rest upon these two attributes alone. He followed successfully more vocations in the course of his long life from 1735 to 1818 than any American who has ever lived. The old saying, "Jack of all trades and master of none," did not seem to apply to Paul Revere. He was an engraver, a portrait painter, a designer, a printer, a brazier, a goldsmith, a wood carver and a dozen other things, and in nearly all these lines he excelled. Although fifteen of the best years of his life were spent in the service of his country, for which he received no remuneration, he amassed a fortune great for those days and which his descendants still enjoy. There are many extant specimens of his work, valuable for their workmanship as well as for their historie associations. It is known that he practiced dentistry to some extent and that it was by a set of false teeth of Revere's make that the body of General Joseph Warren was identified on Bunker hill the morning after the battle, but it is not known that any of Revere's manufactured molars exist to-

Nature and Deformity.

Nature is very particular to conceal her deformities, and all that is worthless or ungraceful generally drops off from a tree unless it be an injury to the trunk. From such effects the tree never recovers. Go into the forests and how often we see deformed trees, some bent and twisted, some parted till the original trunk becomes like two, each crossing and recrossing the other. This was done by depression or injury to the tree in its young and tender years. Nature has no power to right a broken law either in the animal or the vegetable organism. Punishment follows. and deformity results.

MISS LINNIE HAGUEWOOD.

Remarkable Development of the Helen Keller of the West.

In a little town of the Dakotas is a though her life story is known to only a few outside, it is almost as interesting as that of the daughter of the give the world to get them back. south who has had such wonderful success in developing her mental faculties in spite of the obstacles in her grace. You can throw off your them by disease at about the same age | fat and cultivate a round waist. All as the former. From the time she was a child in arms until her sixteenth year | do if you will but try. she lived in that world of darkness and isolation which is known only to the deaf and blind. Her parents, people in the humbler walks of life, regarded her condition as practically beyoud hope, and until she was almost on the verge of womanhood her only communication with the outside world was by the sense of touch.

At this point fortunately some one suggested to the parents the idea of ed when a good man offers her his placing the unhappy girl in the Col. hand, heart and fortune, whether the Miss Dora Donald, in her position as teacher at the institution, was attracted to Linnie Haguewood by the beauty of her hands and the sweet expression of her mouth and believed that the slender, tapering fingers could be educated to become a means of communication with the darkened mind. For two years Miss Donald labored with her pupil in the kindergarten. At the end of this time the two entered the moral it is wrong to be the means of higher department of the college, and from this period until Miss Haguewood took a place for herself in the world she occupied practically all of Miss Donald's time and attention.

later in life than that of Helen Keller, | the lacings of her shoes, the condition Miss Haguewood has made wonderful progress. She soon became an expert on the simple typewriter which is used in producing literature for the blind for two years and nobody will rememand is now able to manipulate the ordinary typewriter as rapidly and correctly as many operators who are possessed of sight. She prepares study and examination papers on this machine. She has also become skilled in the art of bookbinding.

Linnie Haguewood is a young woman of twenty-three, capable of earning her own living and taking a perfectly independent place among the world's workers. From a wayward, passionate, ignorant girl she has been converted into a modest, prepossessing woman, whose intelligence and refinement of disposition are reflected in her appearance. Incidentally it might be remarked that she has a strongly religious temperament and that one reason for Miss Donald's success was her appeal to her pupil's devotional instincts.-New York Tribune.

The Raby's Band.

There are several wrong ways of putting on a baby's band. It may be fastened too tight. If it is a hemmed or bound band it is a very easy thing to make him uncomfortable with it, no matter how loosely you pin it on. The band, when it is of flannel, should be an unbemmed strip torn from the piece. Skilled nurses sew this band on the child every morning with a few quick stitches. The nervous mother shrinks from attempting this and sticks to safety pins. But there is a wrong way as well as a right way of putting these in. The wrong way is to use large pins and then put them in up and down, so that when the poor little thing bends over, as a weak backed youngster is prone to do. the onds of the pins punch his tender unatomy. The right way is to use small | pins and put them in horizontally. Then, when the baby leans over, no harm is done. When the child is older ! and wears a knit band, with or without shoulder straps, there is no more trouble about pinning or sewing, but at first the strip of flannel is almost universally worn by babies.

Keeping One's Youth.

There is no reason why a woman should age between the ages of forty and sixty. With the new and highly improved methods of retaining youth a woman keeps her figure and complexion, her spirits and her mental faculties and so continues young long past her middle age. It is the good, perfectly sincere, simple going iomestic woman who grows old. It is she who allows the lines to come and the hair to grow farther and farther back from her forehead. It is this woman who lets the bags thicken under her eyes and who forgets that a trim waist is more to be admired than a saggy one. Some day, when it is too late, she awakens to it all, and then she drowns in bitter tears the remembrance of the days when she scoured the brasses, mended the broken china, swept the young woman who can truly be called | floors, cooked and labored and served the Helen Keller of the west, for, until late in the night to prove that she was a good helpmate, while her charms gradually fied. Now she would

And she can. Take heart of grace, dear domestic woman, take heart of of many of the wrinkles; you can certainly clear your skin; you can get buoyancy in your step and drive out these things and many more you can

Her First Proposal.

When a young girl receives her first offer she is really on the brink of two pitfalls. She either imagines herself in love when she is not or she is possessed of a coquettish pride which is apt to lead her to reject a most worthy suitor, says Grace Wilson in American Queen. A girl should feel complimentlatter be large or small. She is indeed honored even if the suitor be beneath her station, and she should at least show some appreciation of the compliment: Coquetry has so often destroyed the hopes and blighted the whole life of a woman. She thinks that because she is equal to conquests she should not be conquered until she has sacrificed a certain number of victims. Often before she realizes it the offers have begun to fall off and she is uncomfortably conscious of the fact that she is older and has lost much of her freshness and the question, "Who is he?" has resolved itself into "Where is he?"

Household Ornaments.

One of the first steps toward a general raising of the standard of rational living is the elimination of bric-a-brac in household decoration. Many women have banished every piece of useless ornament they once possessed. What vases they now own really hold flowers. Their candiesticks hold candles which are burned every night. Their pictures are few and are really worth looking at. As for little china statuettes, carved boxes, burned wood plaques and panels and the like, they have been relegated to lumber rooms or sent to enrich rummage sales. This last course cannot be recommended. Ruskin was right in condemning the woman who gave ugly garments to the poor. If bric-a-brac is artistically imanother person's acquiring it.

Details In Dress.

The little things are those which stamp the well dressed woman. Style Today Linnic Haguewood is one of is a quality that strikes the eye at a pays the strictest attention to the de-Although her education began much | tails, the bindings of her dress skirts, of her veils, the spotlessness of her neckwear and the perfect appearance of her gloves can wear the same dress ber to remark it. Importance of Dressing Well.

It is every woman's duty to dress just as well as she can. By dressing well one does not mean elaborately or expensively or conspicuously. The little word "well" conveys far more than many syllabled adjectives. It implies appropriately, with good taste and good effect. No woman can be graceful, no woman can do justice to her conversational powers and other accomplishments when painfully aware that the hue of her dress is fatal to her complexion and that its cut caricatures her figure. The consciousness of looking her best undoubtedly has much to do with her power to charm.

Mattress Covers.

Considerable care is required to keep a bed clean. Mattress covers are a great help. They are made the size and shape of the mattress and just large enough to slip over it. Hem both sides of one end and work six or eight buttonboles on the other side to correspond with them. This can be taken off and washed when necessary and keeps the mattress clean.—Boston Beacon.

A Laundry Hint. Put the little things, such as handkerchiefs, cuffs, collars and wash rloths, into a pillowcase, where they are rubbed clean, and they can be boiled, rinsed and blued as though they were one article, thereby saving much time. Put napkins, doilles, etc., lato a separate case.

If a chimney catch fire, run to the salt box and empty it out on the flames. They will be reduced as if by magic, and then further steps can be taken to extinguish them.

PAUL REVERE'S BELL CAST BY FAMOUS PATRIOT, IT STILL

No American.

RINGS IN ESSEX, MASS.

[Special Correspondence.] Essex, Mass., Sept. 21.-Less famou than Philadelphia's Liberty bell, but worthy of patriotic veneration, is the bell which hangs in the tower of the Old North church here. For over a hundred years it has tolled morning and evening, sounding fire alarms, summon ing the people to divine worship and marking the passing of Essex citizens It was cast by Paul Revere, the Leve lutionary hero who by his midnight ride through the Middlesex villages roused the "embattled farmers" who fought the British at Lexington and Concord. On the side of the bell, standing out in bold metallic letters and figures, is the inscription, "Revere, Bos ton, 1797. The Old North church, whose frame was erected in 1792, was completed five years later. It lacked only a bell. The bell of the preceding religious edifice was small and unmusical. Paul Re vere, having established in Boston aft er the close of the great war a foundry for the easting of cannon and bells had already acquired renown in the arts of peace rivaling his reputation as a man of war. To him was given the contract for a new bell. The old one was sold and the balance of the cost of the new one raised by subscription documentary evidence of which is still in existence. Besides the cost of the copper the religious folk of Essex con tributed 100 silver dollars to be cast into the bell, from which resulted the sweetness of the peal which yet charms

The weight of the bell is 827 pounds It is said that Abram Perkins hauled it from Revere's foundry to Chebacco. now known as a part of Essex. A great bell maker and a notable patriot, Revere's claim to distinction does not rest upon these two attributes alone. He followed successfully more vocations in the course of his long life from 1735 to 1818 than any American who has ever lived. The old saying, "Jack of all trades and master of none," did not seem to apply to Paul Revere. He was an engraver, a portrait painter, a designer, a printer, a brazier, a goldsmith, a wood carver and a dozen other things, and in nearly all these lines he excelled. Although fifteen of the best years of his life were spent in the service of his country, for which he received no remuneration, he amassed a fortune great for those days and which his descendants still enjoy. There are many extant specimens of his work, valuable for their workmanship as well as for their historic associations. It is known that he practiced dentistry to some extent and that it was by a set of false teeth of Revere's make that the body of General Joseph Warren was identified on Bunker hill the morning after the battle, but it is not known that any of Revere's manufactured molars exist to-

Besides induiging in the activities already mentioned Revere devoted some of his spare time in middle life to keeping a hardware store on the corner of terms as coroner. At the age of sixtythree he wrote a commonplace account of the circumstances of his famous ped there. Though he was a versatile man, he did not shine in authorship and oratory.

Nature and Deformity.

Nature is very particular to co her deformities, and all that is worthless or ungraceful generally drops off from a tree unless it be an injury to the trunk. From such effects the tree never recovers. Go into the forests and how often we see deformed trees, some bent and twisted, some parted till the original trunk becomes like two, each crossing and recrossing the other. This was done by depression or injury to the tree in its young and tender years. Nature has no power to right a broken law either in the animal or the vegetable organism. Punishment follows, and deformity results.

Gossip About Poet Riley and "Terry ... Authors Hut" - A New Story About the Late M. de

At the age of eighteen he began a popular writer his works have a his journalistic career, going later into politics, finally entering parliament in 1879. When Mr. Parnell retired as his books had been printed in fortyleader of the Irish party Mr. McCarthy succeeded him. In the days of the old Galaxy in New York Mr. McCarthy asked the editor if he would take a story he had submitted. "Yes," was the reply, "and sixty more like it."

The future member of parliament bow-

"What is that?" asked the editor. Mc-

"Here are the sixty stories you ordered explanation followed in which McCarthy recalled the exact language of the editor, who, laughingly acknowledging that it sounded like an order, gave his check for the whole amount claimed.

When some one quoted from Disraeli's father that "youth is a blunder, middle life a failure and old age one long regret," McCarthy replied, "I am glad to have lived."

Effect of Suggestion.

Study carefully the temperament and tastes of your children, that you may put before each the suggestic will best arouse within him his own constructive, beauty making powers. Let nothing be said before the little one that will not bear repeating and nothing done that may not be imitated. "The greatest characteristic of early childhood is the power of imitation." says Professor Elmer Gates.

Not a sight, sound or condition escapes the watchful eye of a bright, active child, and to put into expression every new thought or fascinating mental picture, whether good or bad, is an irresistible instinct. This is why stories, amusements, pictures and everything that feeds a child's mind should be suggestive of only that which would place beautiful and happy pictures before his mental vision.

Of the grandeur, beauty and joy in the world seek in some simple manner to make the little children conscious and that they, too, in a way are inlets, great or small, of what they see, hear. taste or feel.-Mind.

Asbestus Mats.

The common custom of using rush mats under hot dishes as a protection to the polished wood does not appeal to a housewife as giving an air of daintiness to a prettily set dining table, and we suggest a pretty idea for table mats. Cut a round or oblong piece of linen the size desired and embroider with sprays of flowers or a conventional design; then cut two 11/2 cents per word. Not the least in- pieces half as large for the underside. Place the two straight edges together, which should be on the selvage at the middle across the center. When placed Count Tolstoi's pamphlet "Thou in this manner, they are the size of the upper piece, and both should be basted together and a scallop worked around the edge through the top and underside. Now you have a mat with an opening in the center, into which you can slip a piece of asbestus cut the shape of the linen, only a trifle smaller. When the mat needs laundering, slip out the asbestus and launder same as doilies.-Martha Manning in Pilgrim.

The snakes with which I have generally associated have mostly been the little chaps, such as the lively two foot garter snake that I had in a Kansas City street car one day. I had picked him up in the suburbs of the city, and before taking the car back to the business section of the town I buttoned him in the inside pocket of my coat. Now, anybody who has ridden over the streets of Kansas City knows that in places it seems as though the cars were climbing up the roof of a barn. When I got on the car it was full, and so I had to grab a strap in order to stand up. Presently a seat became vacant beside me and I sat down. As I did so I glanced up and there was my poor little snake hanging to the strap I had just left. Various other people noticed him at the same time, and the ensuing exhibition would have enabled any person in the car to secure a job as a circus acrobat at a handsome satary. After they had escaped I put the snake back in my pocket. The conductor was a hero and stuck to his post, but he put me off the car and kept my nickel.-W. S. Dunbar in Out-

Strange Office Where Many Languages Are Spoken. [Special Correspondence.]

New York, Sept. 21 .- The tower of Babel still stands in the very midst of this big city, a place of many men and many tongues, an oddly cosmopolitan gathering in the very strangest business office that is to be found upon the venerable island of Manhattan or within a Sabbath day's journey from its stores. This tower is a place where Swede elbows Cuban, where Greek makes friends with Turk and Spaniard holds converse with Japanese, a place where one may hear any and all recognized languages and some that are not recognized and where one marvels that there can be in one small world so many different ways of saying the selfsame things.

Ten Years' Excavations Just Terminated Reveal the History of Greece For Fifteen Conturies-The Vatiena of the Ancient World.

[Special Correspondence.] Athens, Sept. 1 .- The French Archæological school at Athens has finished its ten years' excavations upon the site of Delphi, the great sanctuary of Apollo, and has turned over the site to the Greek government. The work accomplished has been of almost inestimable value to science. The Delphian shrine, as it now lies exposed, consists of a large irregular quadrangle upon the hillside below Mount Parnassus, with gates at intervals in its walls, the main entrance being at the southeast corner opposite the Castalian spring. From this gate the Sacred Way, paved and lined on either side with votive buildings, etc., leads up in winding curves to the great temple of Apollo, of which only the substructure remains, revealing the chamber where the oracles were delivered. Before this temple stood the altar of the Chians, dedicated in the fifth century B. C., but the excavations have proved that it had been a place of sacrifice from a remote age. Above the temple stood the theater, one of the best preserved buildings in Greece, and the Lesche, a building mentioned by Pausanias as containing two celebrated series of paintings by Polygnotus.

The most important of the buildings from the point of view of the artist are the treasuries, small temples in which the various cities deposited their offer ings. These are all in ruins, but so many of their fragments have been recovered that it has been decided to rebuild one of them, the treasury of Athens, a trophy of the battle of Marathon. This stands on the Sacred Way, and just beyond it are the Rock of the Sibyl and the famous Stoa of the Athenians.

The bas-reliefs, sculptures and inscriptions now in the museum are of so varied character and so great number that it is impossible to enumerate them. The richly carved Omphalos, the stone which was supposed to mark the center of the earth, and a bronze statue of a charioteer of the greatest artistic beauty, dedicated about 472 B. Effect of Suggestion.

Study carefully the temperament and tastes of your children, that you may put before each the suggestions that will best arouse within him his own constructive, beauty making powers. Let nothing be said before the little one that will not bear repeating and nothing done that may not be imitated. "The greatest characteristic of early childhood is the power of imitation," says Professor Elmer Gates.

Not a sight, sound or condition escapes the watchful eye of a bright, active child, and to put into expression every new thought or fascinating mental picture, whether good or bad, is an irresistible instinct. This is why stories, amusements, pictures and everything that feeds a child's mind should be suggestive of only that which would place beautiful and happy pictures before his mental vision.

Of the grandeur, beauty and joy in the world seek in some simple manner to make the little children conscious and that they, too, in a way are inlets, great or small, of what they see, hear. taste or feel.-Mind.

Asbestus Mats.

The common custom of using rush mats under hot dishes as a protection to the polished wood does not appeal to a housewife as giving an air of daintiness to a prettily set dining table, and we suggest a pretty idea for table mats. Cut a round or oblong piece of linen the size desired and embroider with sprays of flowers or a conventional design; then cut two pieces half as large for the underside. Place the two straight edges together, which should be on the selvage at the middle across the center. When placed in this manner, they are the size of the upper piece, and both should be basted together and a scallop worked around the edge through the top and underside. Now you have a mat with an opening in the center, into which you can slip a piece of asbestus cut the shape of the linen, only a trifle smaller. When the mat needs laundering, slip out the asbestus and launder same as doilies.-Martha Manning in Pilgrim.

Above the temple stood the theater, one of the best preserved buildings in Greece, and the Lesche, a building mentioned by Pausanias as containing two celebrated series of paintings by Polygnotus.

The most important of the buildings from the point of view of the artist are the treasuries, small temples in which the various cities deposited their offerings. These are all in ruins, but so many of their fragments have been recovered that it has been decided to rebuild one of them, the treasury of Athens, a trophy of the battle of Marathon. This stands on the Sacred Way. and just beyond it are the Rock of the Sibyl and the famous Stoa of the Athenians.

The bas-reliefs, sculptures and inscriptions now in the museum are of so varied character and so great number that it is impossible to enumerate them. The richly carved Omphalos, the stone which was supposed to mark the center of the earth, and a bronze statue of a charioteer of the greatest artistic beauty, dedicated about 472 B. C. by Polyzelos, brother of the tyrant of Syracuse, would alone have justified the expense of the excava-

Tradition connects the name Delphi with the legend of Apollo transformed into a dolphin accompanying and guiding the ships which brought the first Cretan settlers to this shore. Homer called it Pytho, which name connects with a still earlier time, when Apollo dispossessed the original deities of the place and slew the python which guard-

From the ninth century before Christ the fame of the Oracle of Delphic Apollo was fully established and continued until its abolition by Theodosius, about 385 A. D. Its rich treasures exposed Delphi to attacks of the enemy, and in 480 B. C. Xerxes attempted to take it. In 279 B. C. Brennus and his Gauls made an attack on the sacred city, but were unsuccessful. tury the temple was destroyed by an parthquake, but was rebuilt. It was again destroyed and rebuilt in the fourth century B. C. It was plundered several times by the Phocians in 350 B. C. and by Sulla in 86 B. C. and again by Nero in a fit of rage because the oracle disapproved of his killing Ms mother. Constantine the Great carded off some of its treasures, and the bronze pedestal of the Platæan trophy s to be seen in Constantinople today.

From the earliest mythical times down to the time of Julian the Aposinte the whole civilized world sought enlightenment from the lips of the Pythian prophetess of Apollo, and during all that long period her commands were obeyed, and her priests exercised a political power equal to that wielded by the Church of Rome over Catholic Europe in the middle ages.

A New Chiffon.

There is a new "double" chiffon, a cross between the transparent and the opaque, which will be welcomed for several seasons. It is not necessary to use as much of it as of the single chiffon. It lasts longer, and it lends Itself delightfully to laces.

Very few know that chiffon, both single and double, washes nicely. Single chiffon when washed and pulled into shape without ironing looks quite like the double.

To Preserve Brushes. Good hairbrushes are costy items, and a way to keep the bristles stiff and clean for years is worth knowing. A Russian coiffeur gives this recipe: Have ready two basins; put a lump of soda the size of a walnut in one and three parts fill it with boiling water. The other basin should be three parts filled with water as cold as you can get it, to which you have added sufficient lemon juice or good white vinegar to give it a noticeably acid taste. Shake the bristles of the brush well up and place, but not too near the fire. Of course the backs of the brushes must not be wet.

Asserting that this action cannot be legally taken, Grout and Fornes will their names must be printed on the official ballot in the Republican and Citizens' union columns. Their contentions are that the functions of the delegates to the two conventions terminated with the adjournment of the bodies to which they were chosen and that they cannot be revived by the action of committees, such as is pro-

The Independent New York Demoeracy, at the head of which is J. F. Sheehan, has practically broken away from the fusion movement on the representation that behind fusion there was a plan to Republicanize the city administration of New York.

Failure of efforts to secure the renomination of Jacob A. Cantor, Democrat, as president of the borough of Manhattan, was the reason assigned for the break, which was followed by the secession of the Bronx delegates from the Greater New York Demo-

ON ALASKAN AFFAIRS.

Senator Dillingham Confers With President Roosevelt.

Washington, Oct. 3 .- Senator Dillingham of Vermont, chairman of the sub-committee of the senate committee on territories, which, on recommendation of the president, made a thorough investigation of Alaskan affairs during the past summer, had a coat is belted at the back and sides, Roosevelt Friday.

On account of the vastness of Alaska, the transportation problem is of paramount interest at present, and Senator Dillingham says the people wagon roads, one in particular, from Valdez to Eagle City, being desired, to open up a vast copper country.

It is expected that the report of the committee to congress will form the basis of important Alaskan legislation.

Washington, Oct. 3.-A good deal of pressure has been brought to bear on the president to induce him not to call congress into extraordinary session in November, but to all callers who have spoken to him in that vein he has said that this government is committed to the proposition that the Cuban reciprocity treaty be made effective at the earliest possible date and he regards it as a matter of good faith that this country should keep its word. He has declined. therefore, to consider any proposition looking to the abandonment of the idea of an extraordinary session.

CONVENT WELL BARRICADED.

French Religious Order Adopts Novel Method of Defense. Paris, Oct. 3 .- The convent of Am-nalis, department of Ille-et-Vilaine, strongly barricaded and defended, was besieged Friday by civil officers assisted by gendarmes. A crowd of hundreds of people, headed by a former mayor, hissed the officers, threw stones at them and impeded their progress. One of the novel methods of defense consisted in a number of beehives, which were placed at the entrance of the convent. The barricades were finally broken down and a number of monks and civilians were arrested.

There is a new "double" chiffon, a cross between the transparent and the opaque, which will be welcomed for several seasons. It is not necessary to use as much of it as of the single chiffon. It lasts longer, and it lends itself delightfully to laces.

Very few know that chiffon, both single and double, washes nicely. Single chiffon when washed and pulled into shape without ironing looks quite like the double.

St. Louis, Oct. 3.-Committees on co-operation and union of the Presbyterian church and the Cumberland Presbyterian church, which have been in session four days, Friday adjourned and issued a statement say-ing that while no final agreements were reached at this meeting, encouraging progress was made towards outlining a proposal of a basis of union to be submitted to the two general assemblies.

To Preserve Brushes.

Good hairbrushes are costy items, and a way to keep the bristles stiff and clean for years is worth knowing. A Russian coiffeur gives this recipe: Have ready two basins; put a lump of soda the size of a walnut in one and three parts fill it with boiling water. The other basin should be three parts filled with water as cold as you can get it, to which you have added sufficient lemon juice or good white vinegar to give it a noticeably acid taste. Shake the bristles of the brush well up and down in the boiling water till they are loned on a featherbone foundation, so clean, then at once rinse them thorthat it may be readily cleaned. The oughly in the cold water and stand little touch of black velvet on the un- them up to dry in the air or in a warm place, but not too near the fire. Of course the backs of the brushes must not be wet.
